Kerrville shoppers looking for handmade gifts can put The Ridge Marketplace’s Holiday Handmade Market on the calendar for Saturday, November 7. The event is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 13439 S. Ranch Road 783 in Kerrville, according to the marketplace’s event listing.

The organizer describes the participating vendors as coming from across the Texas Hill Country and offering handmade goods and one-of-a-kind gifts. It has not published a vendor roster in the available event information, so shoppers should not count on finding a particular maker or product. The listing provides a broad picture of the market rather than a catalog of what will be for sale.

Live music is also scheduled. Wheatlynn Michael is listed from 10 a.m. until noon, followed by Amber Stone from 1 to 4 p.m. That timing gives visitors a straightforward way to plan around the performances: arrive during the morning set, or visit later for the afternoon music. The event runs for six hours, but the published details do not specify admission costs or other visitor arrangements.

For shoppers, a market like this can make it easier to browse work from multiple regional vendors in one trip. It can also offer an alternative to choosing a gift from a familiar mass-market selection. The organizer’s description supports those expectations at a general level; it does not identify individual vendors, guarantee particular items, or provide details about prices or payment methods. Anyone hoping to find something specific may want to check the organizer’s current listing before heading out.

The Holiday Handmade Market appears on both The Ridge Marketplace’s website and the Kerrville Convention & Visitors Bureau’s event listings. As of November 2, the event is upcoming, and those listings confirm the schedule rather than report that the market has already taken place. Readers can consult the organizer’s page for any updates before making plans: https://shopsattheridge.com/event/holiday-handmade-market-2/.

With the date, location, vendor focus and music schedule published, the market offers Kerrville residents a concrete local option for an early-November shopping outing. The details to keep in mind are simple: Saturday, November 7, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at The Ridge Marketplace, with music scheduled across the day.
